1. What has the student done in ministry experiences thus far?

Since my last report:

- [REDACTED] talked to our pre-school director, [REDACTED] about ministry opportunities in a pre-school in the church building.
- Visited World Christian Broadcasting to see their ministry and spoke in their weekly devotional. We had the opportunity to go to lunch with several on their staff.
- We discussed a Week in Isolation as a way to rest, be refreshed, and to interrupt routine and learn.
- We discussed the value of a sabbatical and the value to the preacher and congregation.
- [REDACTED] wrote a bulletin article that was used in our Sunday worship guide.

- We went to Woodbine Funeral Home, talked with [REDACTED] (a funeral director, elder, and preacher), and planned a funeral. We discussed songs, pall bearers, shopped for a casket and vault, and discussed other details of the funeral.
- [REDACTED] accompanied me to my monthly appointment with Phil Pistole, a counselor in Brentwood. I have found it helpful to have someone to talk with that will listen and give honest advice.
- We discussed some memory techniques that have helped me:
  - The stacking system.
  - The peg system.
  - Memorizing Bible passages.
- I shared with [REDACTED] a gospel meeting planning letter that I send to congregations where I have been asked to work in a meeting or workshop.

2. What do you like about the students performance?

[REDACTED] has a great attitude. He is talented, but not arrogant. He was in a “learning mode” all summer. He questioned. He took notes. [REDACTED] was willing to work. He assisted in work projects. [REDACTED]’s last sermon was outstanding. He had good content. His Power Point was effective. His delivery was excellent.

3. What I would like to see change in the student’s performance?

I think [REDACTED] will continue excellent ministry. I enjoyed working with him and Katrina this summer.

Let me know if you need anything else from me. I commend the intern program. That would have been helpful to me forty-five years ago.
